Q.7) How Java achieve platform independence through JVM?

Java is platform independent because it is compiled to bytecode that can be run on any device that has JVM. It means we can write code on windows system & then run it on Linux or mac os system. without making any changes in code.